TYPES OF ROOMS
SINGLE ROOM

- The term refers to a room with a standard single bed providing sleeping accommodation for a single person or one person.
- The room furnishings, fixtures, and facilities depend upon the standard of the hotel and it has a 6’x3’ size bed.
DOUBLE ROOM

- Double room refers to a room that has a double bed and provides sleeping comforts for a couple. The size of the bed is large it is 6’x6’.
TRIPLE ROOM

This room refers to sleeping accommodation for three guests. It can have one large double bed or two twin beds along with a single extra bed.
TWIN BEDDED ROOM

A twin bedded room like a double room is also sold on double occupancy. It has two identical single beds and the beds are separated with a bedside table, generally let out to two gentlemen or two ladies.
INTERCONNECTED ROOMS

These rooms are connected with each other, they have a common wall and an interconnecting door. They can be used for a family by opening the interconnected door and can be let out to two different individuals also.
QUAD ROOM

This room provides sleeping accommodation for four persons and has four single beds or one large bed for a couple and two children.
DOUBLE – DOUBLE ROOM

This room has two double beds and it provides sleeping accommodation for four persons, such as a couple and their two children. It can also be called as a family or twin double room.
HOLLYWOOD ROOM

It is a type of a twin room with two single beds and a common head board.
HOSPITALITY ROOM

A room used for entertaining guests for example a cocktail party, it is not used for sleeping purposes.
LANAI ROOM

This term is used for rooms that are situated near or opposite to the garden area or any scenic beauties like a waterfall or a garden with a water fountain.
CABANA ROOM

These rooms are situated near the swimming pool of the hotel, they are normally used by the people who are fond of swimming. They have a toilet and a hard bed, and are used for a shower and change by the guests who use the swimming pool.
PARLOUR ROOM

A living room or a sitting room. it is not very common in India generally in European hotels it is used for seating a guest while check-in if his room is not ready and on-the-house coffee is served to the guest. They can also be called Salon.
DUPLEX ROOM

Two rooms present on two successive floors connected with a staircase present inside is called duplex room.
ADJOINING ROOM

Two or more rooms without interconnecting doors but can have a common wall.
These rooms are called multi utility rooms. They have utility furniture such as a sofa-cum-bed, convertible bed, Murphy bed, closet bed or roll away beds. The furniture is used for sitting purpose during the day time and for sleeping purpose during the night time.
EFFICIENCY ROOM

A sort of complete self-sufficient unit in itself, it contains a bedroom, living room, dining room, a small kitchen and bathroom, generally situated in hill stations and in resorts on the beaches.
EXECUTIVE SUITE

- The term suite refers to a set of two rooms out of which one is living room and the other is a bedroom.
- The rooms are interconnected with a door.
EXECUTIVE SUITE

- A suite is the most expensive room of the hotel.
- There are various kinds of suites available in hotels they are as follows………..
SINGLE SUITE

- It provides sleeping comforts for a single person and has a living room attached to it.
JUNIOR SUITE

A room with a separate living-sitting area (not a separate room) attached to a bedroom.
DOUBLE SUITE

It provides sleeping comforts for a couple or two persons and has a sitting room attached to it.
DUPLEX SUITE
This type of suite has two rooms on two successive floors and is interconnected with each other by a staircase. In most cases the lower floor is the living room or vice versa and the floor above is the sleeping area. Most hotels provide toilets on both the floors.
DELUXE OR LUXURY SUITE

This is perhaps the most expensive room in the hotel. It has one bedroom, sitting room, powder room, an office and a small kitchen attached to it. The best possible furnishing and fixtures are provided, it may accompany special services like “butler service”, “Valet Service” etc.
PENTHOUSE SUITE

A very luxurious suite of the hotel. It is located on the roof top terrace of the hotel building. Mostly hired by famous personalities like businessmen, writers, performers, actors, this room is away from the hustle & bustle of the hotel and can also have a private elevator.

Gautam Singh, Hospitality Trainer, 07830294949